Your task

Design and build a personal / company website for Shavit Rootman that serves as the public face of his real estate investing business, Charger Property Management, and his broader personal brand (founder, operator, IDF veteran, Hillsdale College alum). Use the photos embedded in this brief as the primary imagery — these are real properties, real people, real moments, not stock photography. The site should feel like him: disciplined, mission-driven, blue-collar tough, but polished.

Who Shavit is

The essentials

Name	Shavit Rootman
Location	Santa Barbara, California (operates Santa Barbara & the Midwest)
Origin	Israel
Education	Hillsdale College (graduate)
LinkedIn	linkedin.com/in/shavitrootman
Substack	shavitrootman.substack.com
Followers	~2,630 on LinkedIn

One-line positioning

BRRRR real estate founder building long-term housing in overlooked Midwest communities — 50 doors today, 100 in Hillsdale and 200 across MI/OH/IN by 2030.

What he does

Through Charger Property Management and a network of 10+ real estate entities, Shavit acquires distressed and overlooked single-family homes, fully renovates them, and stabilizes them as long-term rentals using the BRRRR strategy (Buy, Rehab, Rent, Refinance, Repeat). The current portfolio:

- 50 doors across Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana
- Combined value exceeding $12M
- Primary markets: Hillsdale, MI · Cleveland, OH · South Bend, IN

The mission (his own words)

"I invest in overlooked housing across Midwest communities and transform it into long-term homes for families."

Long-term vision

- 100 homes revitalized in Hillsdale, Michigan
- 200 doors across Midwest markets by 2030
- 30 jobs created locally

- Helping families build stability through housing

Background that shapes the brand

Served in the Israeli Defense Forces (IDF) in a special operations unit. Was a VP at a private equity-backed company (AM Equipment) — where he built the operational systems (weekly execution sheets, project tracking) he now uses at Charger. Originally from Israel, has lived in several countries, now splits time between Santa Barbara and the Midwest. Public about his Jewish identity, support of Israel, and connection to Hillsdale College's Judeo-Christian intellectual tradition. Featured project: 17 Lo Presto Avenue, Hillsdale, MI — full BRRRR transformation, often used as the flagship case study.

Voice / tone

First-person, direct, plainspoken. Treats execution as the moat, not flash. Comfortable saying “not all real estate is sexy.” Mixes military-grade discipline with genuine community-building language. When he writes online he sounds like an operator, not a marketer. Match that.

Phrases pulled from his own writing:

“Just getting started.”

“Improving homes, building communities, and creating opportunities where others may only see challenges.”

“Discipline, resilience, and the ability to execute long-term missions under uncertainty.”

“It is not flashy, but it is one of the biggest reasons we stay on track.”

Brand & visual direction

Feel: Operator-grade. Midwest brick + Israeli grit. Less “luxury real estate” gloss, more “we showed up and did the work.”

Palette

- Deep navy / royal blue (primary) — matches his existing LinkedIn banner
- Warm white / cream (background)
- Muted gold / brass accent (the Charger Property Management logo)
- Charcoal for body text

Typography

Confident serif or semi-serif for headlines (the LinkedIn banner uses a flowing script for his name — keep that as an accent only). Clean modern sans for body.

Logo

Charger Property Management has an existing house-and-laurel logo in gold (see image 2 below). Use it on the Charger pages and footer.

Suggested sitemap

1. Home	Hero with portrait + mission line + key stats
2. About Shavit	His story: Israel → IDF special ops → Hillsdale → real estate
3. Charger Property Management	What the company does, the BRRRR process, markets served
4. Portfolio / Properties	Before/after transformations (17 Lo Presto Ave is the flagship)
5. The 2030 Vision	Hillsdale 100, Midwest 200, jobs created
6. Press / Writing	Substack & LinkedIn articles
7. Contact	Investor inquiries, property inquiries, general

Content modules to include

Hero stat strip. “50 doors. $12M+. 3 states. Building 200 by 2030.”

BRRRR explainer. Four-icon strip: Buy → Rehab → Rent → Refinance → Repeat

Flagship transformation. 17 Lo Presto Avenue, Hillsdale, MI — full-bleed before/after slider

Execution playbook callout. “Who is working where. What needs to get done. What is behind. What is completed.”

2030 Vision panel. 100 Hillsdale homes · 200 Midwest doors · 30 local jobs

From IDF to Operator. Short personal-story section on the About page

Things to get right

- Don't make it feel like a flipper site. No “we buy ugly houses” energy. This is housing infrastructure, not transactional flipping.
- Lead with mission, back it with numbers. The story is “improving overlooked communities” — the 50 doors and $12M are proof, not the headline.
- Use the real photos below. Authentic before/after and real people. Avoid stock imagery entirely.
- Hillsdale matters. Hillsdale, MI is the operational hub and symbolic center. Give it its own page or anchored section.
- Mobile first. He posts from the field; investors and tenants browse on phones.

LinkedIn image library

What I'd like from you (Claude)

1. A complete site structure (HTML/CSS/JS or framework of your choice — recommend a static site that's easy to host).
2. All page content drafted in his voice (use the sample phrases above).
3. Images placed contextually using the photos embedded in this brief.
4. A simple contact form (email-only, no payment / no auth).
5. A short README explaining how to update the photos and copy going forward.

Ask me before assuming anything important. When in doubt, prioritize clarity and credibility over decoration.
